

Taking Apart a Phone

My partner and I broke apart LG G4 Stylus to find any Texas instrument. We broke the entire phone piece by piece. Every part of a phone is like a layer to stack up together. We did not find any of the Texas instruments but at first we took off the back to look for the battery and the mother board. We got the camera and took off the screen we also got the battery. And their also was a sim card and SD card slot. And here are some off the pictures I took.

Here is the back of the phone and I took of the back lid. And when turned the mother board and lastly I found one of the modems. And this is when I took off the silver plate on the

The battery and this is how it looks. And saw the mother board and the SD board around I found some of when I took off a silver plate on the Card slot.

The storage parts their the 2 back off the mother board
