My heart was racing, I was at 20 more seconds before the time blared for me to come to a stop. My vision got blurry and fussy due to stress, my breathing got heavy.

And my head was flowing with thoughts, I looked up to see 10 seconds, I hustled and got the cube across the field before the timer set off. I've seen my and many others robots as dragons, just a soft field of imagination. I felt the adrenaline rise, the cube was brought in time.

And the timer blared off just in time, and we won.
