

Satisfaction!

When a robot works the way you want it to and does it well there's a certain feeling of accomplishment. It feels so good when a robot works correctly after a long time of building. The feeling of a robot working right is like no other, you feel so proud of yourself and it can help you with self-esteem. Working robots and satisfaction is one of the reasons that I love robotics. The trophy is what these robots won after a group of amazing students built them, these robots are a product of the young minds that SEAS has
