

Robots show progress, and future technology. We as people, future scientists, or children are always thinking of the future. Making things better is in our nature. Take Alexander Graham Bell for example he patented the first telephone. Today we have Apple, Samsung, Android, and other companies making new types of phones every year, each one better than the last. This old television shows things have improved over years because of you think of big, fancy, flat screen T. Vs they are very different form this one. Robots are like this; they will get better (but not an apocalypse) over time.