

This reminds me of robotics because it is an award that is made of recycled materials. You don't see that that often! Also recycling is a very big way to save the earth and help the earth. This is very important issue that our world is experiencing right now. Robotics doesn't always have to be new material you can do robotics with recycled materials and used products. This also reminds me of robotics because robotics doesn't always have to be robots and complex machines it can be as simply as winning an award. This award is important to me cause it is overall helping the environment.
