

Problem Baby

This picture reminds me of robotics because I am unwinding the wires. This shows problem solving and I think doing robotics requires a lot of problem solving. My picture makes me happy because I like cute babies and pictures of myself. I once did a pilot program for robotics in sixth grade. I would say I did pretty good for my first time ever. I was on a team of three people. We had a lot of fun! The wires remind me of robotics because complex machines and robots are made of wires. Wires are super cool and fun and big part of robotics.
