

I took this image because I liked how it made me think of VEX. It makes me think of my experience with vex because in both compartments we are building something with pieces to show to others. Like in VEX we are building robots for competitions and for LEGO you build anything you want to try and showcase it. When you are building a robot in VEX you want to make it as good as possible so you can win competitions while in LEGO you try to build your house or store or whatever you want to build and then try to make that as perfect as possible so you can showcase it. This is why I took a LEGO image to represent an experience with VEX.