

I'm standing at the entrance of the field. I'm ready to GO. The crowd is watching, reacting, and recording every move. The board is set. The players are ready. The robot is in position and will dominate. My gut is roiling with equal parts anxiety and excitement. Then I remember: I'm not alone! My team has planned, strategized, practiced, and honed our game. We've studied the board. We know the rules. We understand the science. We've engineered to win. We can play this game for hours.

Go ahead. Roll the dice. Make your move. Ready. Set. Game on!
