

“Robotics in the Wild”

Over the summer (in compliance with local restrictions), we masked up and met on the patio instead of in the basement. The whiteboard is the same one we've used since before I joined the team, symbolizing how the most important part of VEX - the collaboration on a challenge - hasn't changed. However, the whiteboard is in its non-natural habitat, as seen by the flowers, trees, and general outdoor greenery in place of walls and ceilings, showing that everything can adapt to a new situation. I love that the sky is clearing after a thunderstorm, reminding us that things can always improve.
