

2020 is my first year in Robotics and VEX alone with my friends. We are still beginners in the subject; nevertheless, we copiously incorporate the importance of trails-and-failures. The photo demonstrates the concept of structure and balance, which is one of the understandings that I learn from the trails-and-failures. Glancing at the picture, I never considered the equilibrium and sustainability in the structure before joining. It is VEX that presents me with a new perspective of the world. I realize the significances of each nail, pivot, and measurement that contribute to my daily life.
