

The Powerful PC:

Just like a robot, a PC is composed of a complex system of interconnected parts that work together to perform a task. Like a robotics team, each member/part is a vital key to the performance of the whole. Our captain may be the CPU, but without the other components the PC may not as well be a PC. This year in robotics has been a major learning point for us as a collective team because we realized that each and every member's voice matters.
