

This photo of my new robot, reminds me of my experience with VEX because I am building again. Last year I built my team's robot and building again this year reminds me of those experiences. I like building because it lets me come up with new ideas to win the competitions and I get to test those ideas out. Building is also fun because over time you get to see your creation become a full robot.