Brief Description of the poster and the design process.

Posters have the power to convince people to follow a good cause. During World War II the government used posters to help encourage people to keep up the struggle against the Axis powers. One such poster was Rosie the Riveter. Using Autodesk Fusion 360 we created a robot that encourages people to join the wonderful learning that occurs with VEX robotics. The sign states just some of the many benefits of joining a VEX team, such as learning: physics, math, and team building to just name a few. The whole team helped with the creation of the poster. We hope you like it.
