

The logo features the words "GIRL" and "POWER" stacked vertically in a bold, black, sans-serif font. Each letter has a red and blue shadow effect, giving it a 3D appearance. The text is centered within a large, irregular shape that transitions from a light yellow on the left to a bright pink on the right. Several smaller, solid-colored circles in shades of pink and orange are scattered around the main shape.

When we hear the phrase “Girl Powered”, we think of it as powered by girls working as a team. It is reflected in our team by showing the world that girls can do anything!

We show proudly that we are a girls only powered team in robotics. We believe that we can do whatever boys can do and if we can't do what they can then we try to do other things that they can't do. This makes us work harder but that means we get more done. Team members try various roles on the team, everyone has written in the journal, built the robot, and took turns driving. We learn that doing a lot of roles can be beneficial to help the team overcome challenges that we face on a regular basis.

Our diversity of perspective changes almost everything on our team. It shows that we will push to succeed and keep trying. This also shows that we might have a different design than other people will have. This might let us add more things to our robot. If you have people that are better at programming than others for example, you will have a better program than others might have. This might result in us winning.

Mr. Christian is our role model because he helps and encourages us when we face flaws in our work. Yes, because he tries to tell us what our flaws are and gives us hints on how to improve it as much as he can without telling us exactly what to do, and how to do it.

We have fun in our team while we work. We make it to where no one is left out. We also don't make people do things if they are not comfortable with doing it. Yes, this may result in people having to do more work but that is a small price to pay since everyone is comfortable. We also stride in making sure everyone knows what is going on and is ok with everything. In order for this to happen we have to communicate with each other.

In an all girls team most girls will think if not the same then similarly, this makes it easier to come to a decision and have a plan. Girl Powered teams are very intelligent and this does not mean that boys do not have these traits too. They very well might! Alas, it is different for every team.

Any team, whether it is a boy powered team or a girl powered team, can do whatever they want. Our team strides to inspire people to do what they want to do. In our team, there is no "Leader". Everyone is the leader they want to be. We are respectful to our team and their wishes. We make sure to communicate with each other and we have everyone's back. This shows that we have teamwork and have a team effort, no one does only one thing. And no one is the only one who does a job. This is why girl powered teams are important and special.
