Blast Into A New Experience

Our poster is divided into 3 sections as it was made on a trifold board. The first section is dedicated to why you should choose VEX as your robotics experience. This section includes the logos of different VEX divisions as well as an essay about why VEX is a beneficial experience. The second section is all about this year's VRC game. It shows visual representations of the game elements and the field. It also incorporates pictures of our team's robot interacting with the field elements. It has a rundown of the scoring (taken from the game manual) and a picture of one of our programmer's autonomous code plans. The third and final section has 3 pictures of our team on and off the field. The first picture is our drive team on the field with 1247Y Lady Volts, this picture shows the teamwork required between alliance partners. We have actually developed a strong friendship with the other team pictured since then and we are grateful that VEX has brought up that opportunity for us. The second picture shows the importance of communication and cooperation between teammates in order to maximize performance. The last picture is a picture of our team after we went to the finals in a Signature Event with the Hero Bot. This section of the poster also has VEX's 3 core values, Quality, Iteration, and Creativity. In order to make our poster, we carefully looked over the requirements and recommendations on the challenge's page on Robotevents.com, and constructed a plan from there. We couldn't decide between red or black for our background so we settled on making it a split black and red background. We thought it still looked a little plain; so we added fire to the bottom of the black half to go with our team name (Divas On Fire). We knew one of the main things we wanted to highlight was the bonds and friendships formed so the first things we printed out were the team name and team pictures. We also wanted to make sure if someone walked by our poster and didn't know anything about Tipping Point, that they wouldn't be lost. This led to the creation of the center section about the game. Finally, the description of the challenge compared it to a promotional poster, this is why we made a section dedicated to why you should choose VEX for your robotics endeavors. Vex has been an amazing experience so far and we hope to continue our learning far into the future.
