Victory is definite

In the Land of robotica, there lived a king of might of power A king who was not satisfied with simple pleasure, and so he made something new, a competition in the royal kingdom too all of his loyal subjects, since the king decided for such a challenge, the unlikely winners would rise such as Team 599B, The king decided to have a competition where many robots that are made by teams of 4-5, a team known as team 599B, there was Ada who was the team leader of the bunch, Saadan the team builder, Des the team brains and lastly Taz the strategist. With this team they have brought there game, "ada we should enter maybe we will rise with victory," While going to find parts they seem to be in trouble meaning that they werent able to find the right parts, they went to a sorcerer to help create the parts . As well as having to go on an adventure. While going through the adventure.

"Des we need to go to the shops" said taz, they all walked to the shops with there robot base finished and an intake and shooter working, they never noticed that while they were walking they had some flat rocks with them. While walking they saw an evil ogre." we should use the intake and shooter and try it out lets put our rocks inside and hit the ogre" said saadan while doing that Ada figured out a problem which was that the shooter and intake didnt work at the same time how would they achieve victory then, victory such a fickle word would they be able to achieve it Taz doubted. While going through the forest and running from the nasty ogre when there plan failed, after this saadan decided to fix the robot on the go, with there competition in a few days they saw that it would be better to speed up the process. While walking way from the second shop they stopped to fix there robot. While fixing there robot they decided to find a test field. While walking to find one they figure out that they have almost finished there robot, While traveling back they experience a problem which seems to be that they dont have enough support for they endgame, they soon figure out that they added there flat rocks as more weight to help there endgame stick.(the robot will be revealed soon)

Walking back with there awesome robot, they see there competitors, while at the competition the king comes up to them, "what does Victory mean to you", they stood there thinking, as Ada went up to answer she said "we always thought of victory as just a word that can be included in many ways, in this way victory means the idea of how we should obtain when trying hard", Taz chimed in" victory is a fickle word it can mean so many things to diffrent people but our robot will leave us to victory if it doesnt we learn and get better." they all said " we all have our own victories".

As the games were starting we lined up for queue not knowing what the game was,the announcer told us " The game starts with 4 teams that make 2 alliances both alliances go through 3 time periods, our first period consists of no controllers the second period consists of moving with a controller and being able to manuver around the targets hitting each one exaclty to fall into the the pot, the last period consists of covering as much ground that is needed, an automatic win will happen if your alliance wins the no controller period, with this the King brought the actual challenge, "show me what your robot can do and you will be named the Victor of the kingdom", with this team 599B decided to really think about what victory was, Taz decided that she would make a strategy " hear me out ready Ada since you will also be with me and Saadan i want you to be the eyes during the dual, while saadan i need you to be able to be comfortable with the controller, try to manuver the robot during teh second period, and try to get the gold disc into the intake and help shoot out with outake also being able to cover as much ground as we can with the expansion of rope, and desiree make sure too help with robot repairs and running to get anything."

As soon the competition started they all were nervous to see how it will go but that was just a short period of the time, as soon as the buzzer started they were all in game mode. The marvelous bot moved proficiently around the tiles shooting and pushing the gold like disc into their new homes. As soon as the second period started saadan picked up the controller and started maneuvering the robot through the other robots, with this they were able to find new ways to help defeat the other robots, after the third period started which was coming close to the end of the game, there robot covered about 4/5ths of the field showing that they have won that competition there heads were high, being the only rounds there is they won the whole competition, many people were sad but they couldnt believe that they had won, the score came out it was 147-61, being the winners the king awarded them, "hear ye hear ye the winners of the competition team 599B" the king announced.
